November 3, 2021

Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm happy to recommend Alex Zhen Zheng for a web development position.

My name is Dave Poole, a Senior Software Engineer at Apple. I have 15+ years of experience as a web developer & software engineer. Throughout my various roles, I've worked with many developers, and I'm happy to say that Alex is one of the most enthusiastic and eager teammates I've had the pleasure to work with.

Alex came into our team during his Career Experience as a fresh Developer, and immediately showed that he was an fast and adaptable learner. During our time together, he demonstrated the desire to jump in and be helpful on any task possible. His technical contributions, positive attitude, and customer relations skills were a great benefit to the team.

Alex's key responsibilities included implementing parts of an Angular user interface from wireframes using a custom CSS framework, improving the user experience of our application, and developing discrete steps in a Node.JS/ETL data processing pipeline. Our application provided key stake holders insights and meaning from data, and Alex's contributions helped make sure that we were able to accomplish huge goals on a tight timeline.

I believe that Alex has a tremendous amount of potential to develop as a Web Developer, and I'm excited to see how his career grows.

Sincerely,

Dave Poole
david_poole@apple.com
Senior Software Engineer
Apple